

safe was half an inch wider than the vault! But eventually a place was found for the safe, — and for all of us, some forty told, — in a house which could not accommodate 24 civil servants. We even had lots of space in the fine building, with attractive indoor decoration and a magnificent view on the Fjord in the park-like surroundings. Later on an extension was added to the main building, and the villa on Hasserisvej 137 was incorporated in the compound to accommodate the present staff of some eighty persons.

While the physical expansion has taken place to accommodate the many specialists, the efficiency has also been greatly improved with the latest in office equipment, book-keeping systems, etc. Only 16 years, and so much has happened. — The Emborg Group stands well prepared to solve the tasks ahead, fully geared for further success.

The Bicentennial

For more than two generations the American Independence Day, July 4th, has been celebrated in the Rebild Hills outside Aalborg. In fact they are the only public celebrations outside the United States, all to the credit of the Rebild Society and its President, Erik Emborg.

Needless to say that The Bicentennial made it a very special occasion this year. Some 40,000 people enjoyed in the hills the fine programme of entertainment and official speeches, marking the friendship between the USA and Denmark. Speakers were H.M. the Queen, US Ambassador Mr. John G. Dean, Danish Prime Minister Mr. Anker Jørgensen, and the Danish-American Entertainer Victor Borge. Part of the total Danish TV cover was transmitted by satellite to the leading US TV networks.

H.M. the Queen and Erik Emborg, arriving at The Bicentennial Ceremony.